Twibell will be joined by Charlie Rymer in the booth for the telecast while Bill Kratzert will serve as the on-course reporter.

The purse for the 18-hole tournament is $540,000, and an additional $1 million bonus is available for every hole-in-one.

Each hole is worth $20,000, with a $10,000 bonus for the player hitting his shot closest to the pin. If the hole is not won, the money carries over to the next hole. If the hole is won, the player doesn't get the money unless he validates it on the next hole by either winning or tying the low score.

No validation is necessary on playoff holes.

"The stage is set for another exciting event," said Rick Smith, new owner and managing partner of Treetops Resort. "We have been fortunate to have the leading names in golf participate each year, and this year is no exception."

■ Crystal Mountain will host the Michigan Women's Open July 14-16. The 54-hole, stroke-play event carries a $25,000 minimum purse.

It is open to any female golfer who is a state resident with an established handicap of 15 or less, any female professional residing in the state or a Michigan Section PGA member in good standing.

Crystal Mountain's Golf Ambassador, Elaine Crosby, is the two-time defending champion.
